Waterfowl Hunting Regulations

General Provisions

Arthur R. Marshall Loxahatchee National Wildlife Refuge is part of a system of refuges administered by the U.S. and Wildlife Service as a wintering area for migratory waterfowl. Regulated public hunting is an appropriate use of our waterfowl resources and is allowed on 30,000 acres of the refuge's 143,954 acres.

This brochure contains special regulations that supplement state laws with Title 50, Code of Federal Regulations. The regulations are designed to maintain optimal waterfowl populations and, at the same time, provide a rewarding outdoor experience. Careful adherence to these regulations and due respect for others will ensure the future of waterfowl hunting on Arthur R. Marshall Loxahatchee National Wildlife Refuge.

Please Read This Important Message Section Attention Hunters!

Hunting on a national wildlife refuge is a privilege and your behavior while participating in this hunt may affect future hunting on refuges.

Every national wildlife refuge in this state provides habitat for several endangered or threatened species. Federal and State laws prohibit any activity that might harm endangered or threatened plants or animals. We believe that these hunts can be conducted without harming any endangered species and have taken certain precautions to make it so. We cannot, however, prevent irresponsible acts by hunters, and if such acts do occur, we may be forced to discontinue the hunt.

The following endangered or threatened species of wildlife may be found on Arthur R. Marshall Loxahatchee National Wildlife Refuge:
