Archie Carr National Wildlife Refuge

Brevard County/Grace Foley

The Archie Carr National Wildlife Refuge is an integration of federal, state, county and privately owned lands on the barrier island and represents the nation's most significant land conservation and acquisition initiative to protect sea turtle nesting beaches. The Refuge spans a total of 20.5 linear miles along Florida's central and southeast Atlantic coast between Melbourne Beach in south Brevard County and Wabasso Beach in north Indian River County and on both sides of Highway A1A.

- Environmental education programs and tours
- Auditorium with orientation movies
- 3/4-mile foot trail and lagoon kayak launch
- Closed on Mondays

The Center is located 3 miles north of Sebastian Inlet or 14 miles south of US-192. Address: 8385 South Highway A1A, Melbourne Beach, FL 32951. Phone: 321/723 3556

Wildlife Observation

Sea Turtle Watch Programs

The best time to view sea turtles is in June and July when guided, night-time sea turtle watch programs are offered. Reservations for the programs are required.

Interpretive Foot Trails

A total of four trails on the west side of Highway A1A provide unique wildlife observation opportunities within the rare habitats of the barrier island ecosystem.

- Coconut Point Trail: 3/4-mile
- Maritime Hammock Sanctuary Trail: 2-mile
